Arabs Stiffen Demands

The Arab Higher Committee demanded establishment of an "Arab independent state of Palestine," withdrawal of all foreign troops, and an immediate end to Jewish immigration.

Rejecting the recommendations of the British-American Committee of Inquiry, the committee asserted Arabs in Palestine "will defend their country with all the means at their disposal."

Jamal Effendi Husseini, committee chairman, declared that Arabs in Syria and Lebanon were "openly training" to aid Arabs in Palestine.

Husseini said: "I saw them drilling. I did not see any weapons, but I suppose when the need arises they will find them."

(Government spokesmen in both Lebanon and Syria denied that any "underground armies" were being trained in those countries.)

In a reply to the requests of the American and British governments for comment on the Palestine report, the Arab Higher Committee made these three demands:

"Abrogation of the (British) mandate and immediate cessation of Jewish immigration and land sales to Jews.

"Establishment of an Arab independent democratic state in Palestine which will be a member of [illegible]

[illegible] Arabs in Palestine have demanded withdrawal of foreign troops.

Agencies To Merge For Family Work

Two of the largest Jewish family service agencies in the United States—the Jewish Social Service Association, of New York, organized in 1874 as the United Hebrew Charities, and the Jewish Family Welfare Society of Brooklyn, established in 1848 as the Hebrew Benevolent Society — soon will merge to cope with the rising need of welfare service in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn, it was announced by Norman S. Goetz, president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York, to which both groups are affiliated. The merger was ratified by the Federation after its initiation by the board of trustees by both agencies.

The new organization, to be known as the Jewish Family Service, will have executive offices at 115 West Fifty-seventh Street. Thirteen counselling centres in the three boroughs will commence operations July 1, the date the merger becomes effective.

During 1945 the two welfare agencies served a total of 11,584 families, with an estimated 35,822 individuals. The combined budget last year was $938,808, of which $623,932 was contributed by the Federation. During the last six months, Mr. Goetz reported, requests for help in dealing with family problems have increased 12 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

"The end of the war did not bring a decrease in family problems," he added. "To the contrary, incompatabilities in wartime marriages, cramped living quarters and doubling-up with relatives, readjustment of budgets to decreased earnings, job dislocations and other circumstances of the reconversion period have created a sharp increase in demands for counselling [illegible] from [illegible] groups, he said, in addition to the work of trained family counsellors, the new organization will offer

15 MILLIONS SPENT IN PALESTINE IN FOUR MONTHS

Palestine agencies which receive their American support through the United Palestine Appeal, spent more than $15,000,000 in the four months ending April 30, 1946, The United Palestine Appeal together with the Joint Distribution Committee and National Refugee Service raises its funds through the United Jewish Appeal.

A total of 8,082 refugees entered Palestine since January, 1946, with the aid of the United Palestine Appeal and of these 2,600 arrived during one week in May. The major share of these funds is being expended for immigration activities which include rescue and relief, as well as housing and care of the refugees. More than $4,500,000 was expended in this work during the first four months of the year. Colonization and land resettlement, including the acquisition of new land areas and their amelioration, cost $6,300,000. Relief of soldiers' families, care of war invalids, internal security, required almost $1,500,000. Approximately $600,000 was required for aid to trade and industry and for the activities of the Labor Department. Among the many other activities supported by the funds of the United Palestine Appeal are included aid to educational, cultural and religious institutions which required an expenditure of $480,000.

Some Czech Jews Barred From Relief

The Czech Ministry of Finance has refused to exempt from ma[illegible] [illegible] ensure that the property will be distributed only among people of Czech, Slovak, Slavonic, or any other Allied nationality. The recipients, the Ministry demands, must also furnish proof that they are destitute or have suffered war damage. Czech citizens who, in the census of 1930, claimed German or Hungarian nationality are thus barred from receiving relief.

The Council has refused to sign. It is stated, however, that the Ministry is dealing with the matter sympathetically, and it is hoped that satisfactory arrangements will be made.

The Czechoslovak Treasury has authorized repayment to Jews of confiscatory taxes imposed upon them during the German occupation.

The Supreme Council of Jewish Community Councils of Czechoslovakia has decided not to consent to the sale of synagogues or other communal property until all details of property restoration have been settled and all legal questions cleared up. All immovable community property will be leased on a temporary basis on condition that the buildings be used exclusively for religious, cultural, and educational purposes.

The establishment of a special department in the office of the Prime Minister to wipe out all remnants of racial persecution during the past six years was urged by Dr. Ernst Frischer, head of the Executive Committee of the Council of Jewish Communities in Bohemia and Moravia-Silesia (Czechoslovakia), at an audience with President Benes.

"In spite of our great sufferings and the proofs of our active patriotism," Dr. Frischer said, "we have even now to face certain facts which hurt us deeply, especially in Slovakia, where the spirit of revolution has not yet permeated the administration.

"In many cases those who carried out the anti-Jewish measures are still in office, and moreover, those who took an active part in the deportation of 60,000 Jews to the extermination camps have not yet been punished.

"Up to the present, legal and social rehabilitation of the Jews in Slovakia has not been achieved.

"Out of this situation a systematic agitation has arisen in the press resulting in the incidents in Presnov, Bardejov and Topolcany, which are proof of the unhealthy and intolerable conditions in Slovakia."

Dr. Frischer also elaborated on the legal and economic problems of the surviving Jews in the Czech section of the country.

N.Y. Group Helps Jewish Drive

For the Jewish victims of Hitler's tyranny the war is still not over, although it has lasted fourteen years, Governor Dewey declared at a dinner of the non-sectarian Community Committee of New York in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The dinner opened the committee's campaign in support of the drive of the United Jewish Appeal to raise $35,000,000 in the metropolitan area and $100,000,000 na-

Britain May Drop Disarming Plan

The British Government probably will make an historic policy statement on Palestine in the last week of June, announcing in effect the withdrawal of the conditions Prime Minister Attlee placed on their acceptance of the Anglo-American commission's recommendations that 100,000 European Jews be allowed into the Holy Land immediately, says the New York Times.

The reaction to Mr. Attlee's original announcement that this immigration could be permitted only on condition that both sides in Palestine were disarmed had been so adverse, it was reported, that the British are convinced that it cannot be made to stick. American pressure has had a great deal to do with bringing British officials around to this way of thinking.

Exchanges between President Truman and Mr. Attlee and the State Department and the Foreign Office, conducted through the United States Embassy in London, have resulted in agreement that there will be no further negotia[illegible] [illegible] was learned. The British have agreed to declare their policy as soon as the answers have been digested.

Only 24,000 Refugees Instead Of 35,000 Can Enter The United States This Year

Not more than 24,000 refugees and displaced persons can be admitted to the United States from Central Europe during the next twelve months unless legal technicalities arising from President Truman's Executive Order of last December are straightened out.

It has been supposed that with the arrival of about 1,500 refugees in New York that the President's program, which he had expected would bring in 39,000 war victims to the U. S. was going strong.

Actually, since the President specified that issuance of American visas in other parts of the world would not be entirely abandoned, the program for Central Europe had never authorized more than about 35,000 or 90 per cent of the quota for Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and the other countries where Nazi persecution of Jews and democrats inflicted the heaviest toll.

The principal reason why only 24,000, instead of 35,000 refugees and displaced persons can enter the United States a year is the fact that the country has open[illegible] passport offices only for the American occupation zones of Germany and Austria, officials acquainted with the program explained, [illegible] the New York Times.

Acting in accordance with President's directive, the [illegible] Department established pass[illegible] offices in Bremen, Frankfort, Stuttgart, Munich, Berlin, Hamburg, and authorized American Consulates in Vienna to handle applications by refugees in the American zone of Austria. With the Public Health Service in charge of physical examinations, Army intelligence screening out Nazi sympathizers, and U.N.R.R.A. taking care of persons [illegible] visas until they get passage on War Shipping Administration vessels, the program is now going as smoothly as the legal technicalities permit, it was said.

U.S. immigration laws, it was explained, require guarantees that any person admitted to the United States must have a guarantee that he will not become a public charge, and it was largely owing to this requirement, plus birth certificates and other documents, that only 1,800 visas were granted in May, the first month during which the program was in operation.

However, it was explained, immigration laws permit entrances during any one month of 10 per cent of a country's annual quota, or 2,500 a month from Europe. It is not anticipated, however, unless [illegible] straightened out, [illegible] refugees a year will come from the Truman program.

GORDON PRICE WINS Dow Award
is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.
The regular morning train was pulling out of Cedar Park station, west of Montreal. Suddenly there was consternation. A young woman, trying to board the moving train, slipped and fell. Her head struck the side of the train . . . knocking her down into the small space between platform and wheels.
Seventeen-year-old Gordon Price saw what had happened . . . and, without losing a second, threw himself down on the platform and held her away from the wheels. He had to duck back each time the steps of a car came by . . . to keep from being struck himself. Before the train could stop, he had pulled her body away from the tracks . . . to safety.
For his courage and quick thinking, we are proud to present The Dow Award to Gordon Price of Pointe Claire, Que.

MARRIAGES

HAHAMOVITCH-BERGER

The marriage of Miss Mitzi Berger, daughter of Rabbi Julius Berger, 4802 Oxford Avenue, and the late Mrs. Berger, to William Hahamovitch, son of Mrs. A. Hahamovitch, 861 Rockland Avenue, and the late Mr. Hahamovitch, took place on May 30, at eight o'clock, in the Prince of Wales Salon, of the Windsor Hotel, the bride's father officiating, assisted by Cantor S. Miller. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white lace, the bodice having a net yoke trimmed with taffeta, long sleeves, and a skirt of three ruffles edged with taffeta ribbons. She had a fingertip veil held by pearls and orange blossoms, trimmed with lace; and carried a [illegible] shower of orchids, lilies-of-the-valley and Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Gita Fitch, as matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown of yellow crepe, green tulle hat, and green accessories, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. David Hahamovitch was best man for his brother; and the ushers were Maurice Hahamovitch, Monty Berger, and Nathan Messer. The hall was decorated with standards of pink and white snapdragons, gladioli, and palms; the tables with pink snapdragons and roses; and the wedding cake with white sweet peas and lilies-of-the-valley. Later the bride and groom left for a motor trip through the United States, the bride travelling in a two-piece ensemble of luggage tan and beige wool, matching hat, beige accessories, and a corsage of orchids. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. A. Morris, Misses Janet and Gail Morris, Seymour Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz, of Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Spar, Mrs. Lillian Mose, of New York; Mrs. A. Marcus, Miss Ada Hutchinson, Miss Florence Boyce, of Ottawa, Ont.; Harold Seligman, Albert Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. I. Brecher, of Cambridge, Mass.; and David Landman, of London, England.

More Than Two-Thirds Of Europe's Jews Live Under Soviet Influence

More than two-thirds of Europe's surviving Jews live within the U.S.S.R. or countries which come under Soviet influence.

In "Jews in the U.S.S.R.," third in the series of Jewish Affairs pamphlets published by the Office of Jewish Information, Dr. Jacob Robinson traces the fortunes of Russian Jewry from the downfall of the Russian empire, through the years of radical economic and social change, to 1939.

The majority of Russia's Jews were automatically "declassed" at the outset of the Soviet regime. Seventy percent of the Jews had been individual craftsmen and business men for whom there was no place in the new Soviet system. The absorption of "declassed" Jews in the new economic order was achieved partly by factors which affected the Russian people as a whole and partly by deliberate government action to solve the problems of the Jewish population in particular.

The Russian Government removed the disabilities which had, under the Tsarist regime, restricted Jews [illegible] to Pale [illegible] workers"; engineers, doctors, scientists, teachers, writers, agronomists, architects, etc.—fields that had been practically closed to them before the revolution.

The authorities made strenuous efforts to attract Jews to the land. A mass colonization project begun in the Crimea proved unsuccessful and after 1930 all efforts were directed towards resettlement in Biro-Bidjan. According to official data, no more than 23,000 of the 60,000 Jews who went to live in Biro-Bidjan remained and they form only a little over one-fifth of the total population. The percentage of Jews in agriculture in all of Russia has risen only about five per cent from 1897 to 1939.

Despite the classification of Jews as a nationality and the setting up of Jewish national districts and a Jewish autonomous region in Biro-Bidjan, assimilation has proceeded in the Soviet Union at a tremendous rate. Although Yiddish schools have been encouraged there has been a marked decline in attendance. The rate of intermarriage has been high even in areas with large Jewish populations.

The Soviet Government has from the very beginning taken a strong stand against anti-Semitism and has issued a great volume of books and pamphlets to teach the working class that anti-Semitism, like other forms of racial and national hatred, is primarily a means of sowing discord among the workers and diverting their hatred from their class enemies to their fellows of other races or nationalities.

Dr. Robinson reports that before the war 2,100,000 Jews lived in those parts of Russia later invaded and occupied by the Nazis. Only 600,000 survived the occupation.

In a subsequent pamphlet, Dr. Robinson will continue the story of Soviet Jewry from 1939 to the present day.

DO YOU KNOW ABOUT ZAMOSC?

The Yiddish Scientific Institute, Yivo, 535 West 123rd Street, New York 27, announced that Dr. Jacob Shatsky, Research Secretary of its Section of History, has accepted an invitation, extended by a group of former Zamosc residents now in Tel-Aviv, to write a history of the Jewish community of Zamosc, Poland.

In this connection, the Yivo is now gathering documentary material for this history. All persons having materials about Jewish life in Zamosc are earnestly requested to lend them to the Yivo. Such materials may consist of documents, letters, photographs, books, newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets and leaflets. All materials will be returned to the owners upon request.

Jews Beat Germans

Five Germans riding in two automobiles were ambushed and beaten near Poehenwald by a truckload of Jewish displaced persons from an UNRRA camp at Wolfratshausen, Bavaria, according to a report to USFET.

The Jews, the report said, intended to avenge the rumored kidnapping of two persons from their camp but a subsequent head-count showed no one missing.

The Germans included the Oberburgermeister and the Burgermeister of Mitterwald. The Burgermeister and one other German are in a hospital with knife wounds and bruises.

An American lieutenant colonel and fifteen men armed with submachine guns and pistols arrived at the scene half an hour after the incident but did not use force. No arrests were reported.

On the same evening, the Wolfratshausen military government reported, six drunken American soldiers looking for a German girl penetrated a room occupied by six Jews whom they manhandled and obliged at pistol-point to do exercises and play the harmonica.

WE WALK THE Middle Road

We are a fortunate people. We walk the middle road.

Through our Government's wise measures of control, we have, by resisting the temptation to rush after luxuries, been able to enjoy them in moderation.

We have, by keeping necessities at the top of our buying lists, kept the prices of both necessities and luxuries at the bottom.

Hardly another nation in the world today can point to so fine a record.

Yes, we are a fortunate people because we walk the middle road—the road of moderation in all things—in our thinking, in our actions and in our pleasures.

In the years of greater abundance, which are so surely ahead, The House of Seagram believes that moderation, as always, will continue to be a quality essential to the welfare of the nation—and the individual.

O-Cedar Cream FURNITURE POLISH

CLASS IN COOKERY

MANY COOKIES

one pound shortening
four eggs
juice of two oranges
one teaspoon salt
four teaspoons ordinary baking powder
four cups flour

Cream together shortening, eggs, and orange juice. Add dry ingredients, using about four cups flour or as much as necessary to make into dough which can be rolled. Roll on floured board, and cut in strips, then into squares. Sprinkle with sugar if desired. Bake in a hot oven, about 450 degrees, for about fifteen minutes, until browned.

FRESH PINEAPPLE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

three tablespoons butter
one-half cup brown sugar four thin slices of fresh pineapple, cored maraschino cherries

Melt butter in an eight-inch square pan; spread brown sugar over that, and lay the pineapple slices on the sugar, putting a cherry in the centre of each slice.

Batter:

one-third cup shortening
two eggs
one-quarter teaspoon salt
one and one-quarter cups sifted flour two-thirds cup milk
one-half teaspoon pineapple flavoring one and one-half teaspoons baking powder
one-half cup white sugar

Cream shortening, gradually adding sugar, and beat until fluffy. Add whole eggs, and beat; then flavoring. Sift flour, baking-powder and salt, and add to mixture alternately with milk. Pour over pineapple topping, and bake cake in a 350-degree oven for fifty to sixty minutes. Let cake stand for five minutes before turning out on a cake-plate.

13 Killed, Refugee Doctor Ends Life

Melancholy and without hope because of the fate of his people and the tragedies experienced by his family in Europe, Dr. Bruno Daniel, senior psychiatrist at the Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, N.Y., brought his own unhappy life to an end in the hospital where for years he had worked to solve the problems of the mentally ill.

The body of the 47-year-old German refugee, who had fled his native land in 1934 for the United States to find success and freedom but not relief from his anxieties, was discovered hanging from a hinge on a closet door in his room at the staff house of the hospital where he lived. On his desk was a note addressed to the hospital staff. It read:

"Feeling [illegible], the tragedies of my family overseas and the plight of my people abroad have made me melancholy and hopeless.

"My hopelessness is unbearable. Therefore, I have finally decided to end it all in despair.

"Loving thoughts and heartfelt thanks to my beloved friends and kind superiors and co-workers' patience and everybody who has been friendly to me. May they be blessed with happiness and health.

"Deep gratitude to the United States of America—haven and shelter to the oppressed and persecuted in this desperate hour.

"I pray for forgiveness and for aid to my tortured Jewish people overseas in the Holy Land."

The tragedies referred to in the note, according to associates at the hospital, involved the death of thirteen of his family—sisters, uncles, cousins and aunts—at the hands of the Nazis. These events, they said, Dr. Daniel was never able to drive from his mind. In addition, there had been a long period of worry over the fate of his mother and sister, only recently reported safe and well in Palestine.

Two weeks ago, a colleague reported, Dr. Daniel suffered a mild heart attack and was advised to take a brief rest, which he did. He returned to work apparently refreshed and recovered.

Just how thoroughly and carefully Dr. Daniel had prepared for his end was disclosed by police, who said that a month ago he drafted his will and deliberately talked over plans for his funeral with an undertaker. The will named Dr. Martin Lewis of 1351 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, as executor.

Dr. Daniel, according to his former associates, obtained a position at Ward's Island shortly after arriving in this country; was transferred to Rockland State Hospital and returned to his last post in 1942. He was unmarried.

VIEW PALESTINE AS BEST PLACE FOR NON-REPATRIABLES

In its first plenary session since May 3, the United Nations' refugee committee heard a report from its fact-finding sub-committee emphasizing that the new refugee organization's major task should be to find new homes for Jewish refugees, most of whom are non-repatriable. The predominant view among the groups submitting evidence was that this new home should be in Palestine.

The report said that almost all the documents submitted by various independent organizations on the Jewish refugee problem contended that homeless Jews in Europe and the Mediterranean area were non-repatriable. The reason is said to be not political but psychological. The evidence is said to be overwhelmingly to the effect that most European Jews feel incapable of re-establishing themselves in their old homes under any political regime.

The Chef's Chef-d'oeuvre

HEINZ PAREVE *CONDENSED VEGETABLE SOUP WITHOUT MEAT

The recipe for this tasty, pareve soup calls for a wide assortment of garden-fresh vegetables, picked at the peak of their goodness, and lots of time. Like all Heinz soups, this variety is made the slow way, the careful way—small batches at a time. Whether you call it a "meichel" or a chef d'oeuvre, you'll agree that it's vegetable soup at its best—the ideal "vorspeis" for either a "milchig" or a "fleischig" extra-special meal.

*One tin of soup plus one tin of water equals four bowlfuls of delicious, pareve soup.

SEVEN MEATLESS SOUPS by HEINZ

There are no meats, no fats, nor any other ingredient, that violates the Jewish Dietary Laws, used in these seven Heinz Condensed Soups:

Milchig

Cream of Tomato
Cream of Green Pea
Cream of Mushroom
Cream of Celery
Cream of Asparagus
Cream of Vegetable

Pareve

Vegetarian Vegetable Soup (without meat)

Mrs. Axmith wore a print dress, with a grey background, and was assisted by Mrs. Morris Axmith, formerly of London, in a lime-green dress. About seventy-five guests were there.

Miss Ida Illion, 1054 College Street, who spent a few days in Ottawa, and in Montreal, Que., at the Mount Royal Hotel, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cohen, was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newman, at dinner; Mrs. Abrasha Wigdor and Miss Jeanette Goldwater, at luncheon; Mrs. J. N. Neumann, tea at Morgan's; Mr. and Mrs. M. Singer, at luncheon; and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cohen, dinner at Ruby Foo's.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Stern, 1482 Queen Street West, gave a dinner in honour of Mrs. A. Kalechman, of Montreal, Que.; and Mr. and Mrs. David Geller, Mrs. Alfred Silver, and Harry Spelman, all of London, England. Miss Merle Hambourg sang, accompanied at the piano by Morris Kromby. Assisting Mrs. Stern were Mesdames B. Sussman and L. Libgott.

A luncheon was given at the Vanity Fair Room of the King Edward Hotel by Mesdames M. Goldhar, L. Goldhar, and S. Zeltzer, for Miss Pearl Goldhar, whose marriage to Jack Gertzbein takes place on June 23. The honoree wore a powder-blue dress, with matching accessories. The table had a centrepiece of mixed spring flowers. One hundred and twenty guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mayzel, 66 Roxton Road, were at home in honour of their son-in-law, Joseph Silverberg, R.C.A.F., who returned after spending one year overseas. Mrs. Mayzel wore a print dress, and was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Silverberg, in a print dress. Misses Betty Mayzel, Beatrice Naiman, and Pearl Spivak also assisted. The table was decorated with roses, a gift to Mrs. Mayzel from her son-in-law, and had as a centrepiece a huge cake, inscribed. The room was decorated with streamers, and two hundred guests called.

Mrs. S. Silverberg, 8 Leonard Avenue, entertained for Miss Frances Winipole, fiancee of Irving Kline, of Washington, D.C., who will be married some time in June. Guests present were: Mesdames H. Klyman, S. Heller, S. Rosen, J. Nightingale, I. Gellman, S. Silverberg, M. Kaufman, L. Hellin, P. Winipole, J. Winemaker, A. Wachter, M. Ramin, M. Greenspan, V. Giblom, S. Nisenbaum, H. Nisenbaum, and W. Miller. Mrs. Silverberg wore a brown dress, trimmed with lime-green, and was assisted by her mother, Mrs. A. Wachter, in a black crepe dress. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. P. Winipole, wore a turquoise-blue crepe dress, and the honoree a grey crepe dress. The table was covered with a lace table cloth, and decorated with flowers as a centrepiece, and candles at each end.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Wellman, 547 Clendenan Avenue, gave a party to celebrate their daughter Evelyn's sixteenth birthday. Evelyn wore a white net dress, and a corsage of yellow roses. The guests went dancing and then to the home of Miss Frances Findlay, 2910 Dundas Street West. Those present were: Evelyn Wellman, Marion Albin, Mona Bogo, Adele Cainer, Estelle Shore, Shirley Wasserman, Frances Winters, Shirley Smith; and Elliot Rubin, Leon Wienberg, Marvin Shore, Leo Postel, Norton Longert, Jack Bernstein, Alex Schwartz, Marvin Gordon, Marvin Borkowitz, Lawrence Wellman, and Jack Weinraub. Mr. and Mrs. Wellman entertained friends and relatives at a cocktail party at their home in honor of their daughter, those from out-of-town being: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dunn and sons, Andrew and Stephen; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wellman and sons, Lawrence and Alan; Albert Wellman, all of Detroit, Mich.; and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Wellman, of New York, N.Y.

MARRIAGES

PRESSMAN-WOLOSHEN

The marriage of Miss Lottie Woloshen, daughter of A. Woloshen, 104 Beverley Street, formerly of Quebec City, to David Israel Pressman, son of Mrs. Molly Pressman, 8 Gore Street, and the late I. Pressman, took place on Friday, May 3, at the home of Rabbi B. Charloff, 408 Markham Street, who officiated. Miss Beatrice Wagman sang "Because", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. B. Charloff. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. N. Sokol. She wore a light blue crepe suit, a corsage of sweet peas, and white gloves, and a hat of black tulle, with flowers. The groom was given in marriage by the bride's sister and brother, Miss Freda Woloshen, and Moses Woloshen, of Quebec City. Miss Woloshen wore a grey wool suit, a pink crepe blouse, a corsage of carnations, and a black hat. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Moses Woloshen and son, Jack, of Quebec City.

THE FUTURE OF JUDAISM

to believe in? What form of Jewish Service can stimulate and hold their attachment? What presentation of Judaism will win their firm loyalty?

Liberal Judaism presents the historic essence of Judaism in a way which those who are brought up in the intellectual atmosphere of the modern world can appreciate; and it maintains the historic institutions of Judaism in a way which can impress them. What chance is there of holding the loyalty of Jewish children at school to Judaism if its teachings are contradicted by what they are taught at school? But the contradiction is not necessary. Judaism is big enough to include all truth. There is a famous Rabbinic saying: Truth is God's seal, which means that where we find truth we find the instruction of God. It is in tune with Jewish Tradition so to interpret the teachings of Judaism that they will impress men with their truth. It adds power to Judaism to define God's creation of the world in the terms of evolution rather than in the terms of ancient creation stories.

Similarly it is in line with Jewish Tradition to maintain the historic Jewish institutions which have a present effective meaning. Hillel abolished the Biblical law cancelling all debts in the Sabbatical year because he found that it caused hardship. Jochanan ben Zaccai abolished the ordeal prescribed in the Bible for a woman accused of adultery, as he said, for social reasons. It is a mistake to think that respect for Tradition means to follow slavishly the past. On the contrary, it means so to develop the legacy of the past as to make it effective in the present.

Only by giving the Jewish Tradition a living form can it be carried into the future as a living force. And that is what Liberal Judaism is—Judaism in a form which lives in the present by its interpretation of the great Jewish ideas and by its practice of the great Jewish institutions. That is why it holds the promise for Judaism in the future. It shows forth the present beauty and power of Judaism as well as its past glory.

There is another reason. What do we expect of a religion? That it should bring the blessing of faith to those who adhere to it. These blessings are: comfort in times of sorrow, strength and help in times of difficulty, confidence at all times in the love of God, and readiness at all times to strive to live in accordance with His will. It is the function of religion to bring men nearer to God. It is the function of Judaism to bring Jews nearer to God in the Jewish way. We want, therefore, a Judaism that will answer our questions about the meaning of the universe and the value of human life and so supply the guidance for our way of life. That is what Liberal Judaism does for the many who want a Judaism which combines Jewish Tradition with modern thought and applies it to modern Jewish life. And in this way it serves the future of Judaism and the Jews.

ARABS STIFFEN

According to word from Trans-Jordan, Prince Emir Abdullah king-designate of that neighboring country, received a cable from President Truman in which the President said it was the view of the United States government that no fundamental change in the status of Palestine would take place without Arab and Jewish leaders being consulted.

Hussaini said the governments of the Arab states are voting large sums of money to help build a defense against Zionism in Palestine, and that some of the funds would be used to extend Arab propaganda in America. He said new Arab offices would be opened in New York and Chicago to supplement work now being done by the Washington Arab office.

CZECH JEWS

The main problems facing the Czech Jews are:

1. Confusion resulting from the permission granted to the Jews to profess Jewish nationality. They find in many places that they are excluded from privileges granted to Czechs and other Slavs and consequently wish to change their registration.

2. Discrimination against German speaking Jews, who registered as Germans before the war.

3. Property and funds which were stolen from murdered Jews by the Nazis. These are now the property of the Czech state, but are badly needed for the rehabilitation of the surviving Jews.

24,000 REFUGEES

unused portions of monthly quotas cannot be used in succeeding months, this means a permanent loss for persons desiring to make their homes in the United States.

Germany itself, which has a quota of 25,000 is principally responsible for the deficit, officials said. Since the President's directive concerned only refugees and displaced persons, German Jews and other victims of the Nazis are not ipso facto considered in this category—only where they have lost their homes and means of making a living, or are otherwise in a desperate condition.

Good Health And Happiness

"Nature is the curer of all diseases."—Hippocrates.

Good health is the norm; and sound balance in life depends much upon so relating our bodies to the primal sanities of nature that our functions are preserved and continued vital, active and pleasurable.

Carlsbad Sanatorium offers a restful guest-house, with simple facilities for recovery of normal health through contact with nature's benefits. Outdoor living and sun bathing, graduated exercising, pleasant social life, good food, water from crystal springs, sound sleep in clear, light air.

Sulphur-saline mineral springs from deep-rock sources, twice analysed by Government laboratories. Steam mineral baths and packs, with expert massage and physiotherapy. Special and medical diets. Persons coming for treatment should secure written indications from their home physician. We work in co-operation with the medical profession.

Reductions to June guests. Best choice of rooms to early arrivals. Reservations for July should be made early; and preference in rooms is given to persons willing to come during first week of July.

The Future Of Judaism

By Rabbi Dr. I. I. Mattuck, Of London, England, In The Liberal Jewish Monthly

The number of Jews brought up in Orthodox Judaism who are falling away from it increases steadily. The reason is not far to seek. Orthodox Judaism is based on the belief that the Bible and Talmud taken together contain a literal revelation from God and must, therefore, be literally followed in all their ideals and in all their commandments. What the Bible and Talmud say must be believed, what they command must be done and what they forbid must be avoided.

There can be nothing but respect for the Jews who interpret Judaism in this way and try to carry it out in their lives by fulfilling all the ceremonial commandments from the least of them to the greatest of them. All that can be urged on them is that they show equal zeal in carrying out meticulously and completely the moral commandments of Judaism and equal ardour in applying its high moral and spiritual ideals in all the circumstances of their lives, so that their lives will show a harmony of ceremonial zeal and moral earnestness. The many Orthodox Jews in whose lives this harmony exists show the beauty and power of their religion. But they draw their inspiration and impulse from their belief that they are literally fulfilling the word of God. They regard the least of the ceremonial commandments because they believe that God has himself commanded them. That is the traditional belief of Orthodox Judaism.

But there are many Jews who cannot accept it. They include many who belong to Orthodox Synagogues. The number is increasing, and is bound to increase still further. The causes are inescapable. If Orthodox Judaism were the only possible form of Judaism, then the outlook for Judaism would be increasingly gloomy. The position has become critical. In the past Orthodox Judaism in the Western countries has been largely recruited from the Jewries of Eastern Europe, especially Polish Jewry. Alas, they have been decimated by Nazi savagery and their institutions completely destroyed. That is an historical tragedy for all Jews with special significance for Orthodox Judaism in countries like England and America. The fact that Orthodox Judaism in these countries has been recruited from Eastern Europe shows that it has not, and cannot, take firm root in them. That is a fact which calls for earnest thought. Translated into practical terms, it means that in these countries children cannot be brought up with a belief in Orthodox Judaism.

Let us not make the mistake of thinking that Orthodox Judaism consists of a sentimental attachment to a few Synagogue melodies. It is a great religion that goes deep and demands much. But there are valid reasons why many Jews cannot accept its fundamental idea. Their attitude is a challenge, for the future of Judaism depends on the ability to hold their loyalty. That is where Liberal Judaism comes in.

For, why can't this large, and increasing number of Jews accept Orthodox Judaism? They find some of the ideas in the Bible and Talmud unbelievable in the light of the increased knowledge which men now have about the world and the history of the human race. The primitive story in Genesis is one example, the story that God commanded Noah to kill every Amalekite man, woman and child, to quote from I Samuel 15:3. Or, assume that some ethical issues have been raised. Has any one troubled to call his attention to the idealisms of Scripture? Or, take a look at the shelves in his room. Are there any Jewish books, even in translation, which reveal use? There may be a Bible or Siddur on a shelf: but these are Bar-Mitzvah gifts, well meaning and too gilt edged for use." Dr. Goldin believes that the Jews must not fail to provide influence toward the inculcation of specific Jewish attitudes in students.

In the paper sent to the Review by the Yiddish Scientific Institute, Mark M. Krug, Executive Director of the Bureau of Jewish Education, in Buffalo, N.Y., expresses alarm over the findings of Dr. Meyer Greenberg, Director of Hillel Foundation at Yale University, based on a survey among 94 students whose average age was eighteen years and four months, the great majority being American-born of the second generation. Only forty percent felt that the fact that they are Jews had a beneficial influence on their daily lives. Most felt their Jewishness was a hindrance, or at best a neutral factor. Less than half want to live as Jews and feel that a continued Jewish existence as a distinct group is desirable. Twenty-four percent favored complete assimilation. Many felt that mixed marriages are the best way to weaken anti-Semitism. Forty-seven percent have no objection to intermarriage even if the non-Jew does not become a convert; thirty-four percent were opposed.

Anti-Semitism is by far the most annoying and the most vital problem in the lives of Jewish students at Yale University, and sixty-eight percent felt that American Jews must organize to fight it. Eighteen percent thought that such a move would increase hatred. Seventy-one percent believe that the Jews should organize on the campus. The great majority favor a Jewish national home in Palestine; twenty-seven percent being opposed. Only eighteen percent expressed faith in divine guidance. Most of them regret their inadequate Jewish training.

That without exposure to Jewish influences and education no positive Jewish attitudes can be acquired is obvious from the surveys which point to community inertia and callousness. Parents, rabbis, teachers and community leaders now have enough facts from them to know that Jewry requires the courage to make a right-about-face and to build against indifference caused by its own inability and neglect. To lose the Jewish student group as a source of community leadership is to suffer a waste which is unjustifiable until every means against it has been tried out and every provision has been made to keep the interest and loyalty of these young people. I.f.c.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I hail them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be true,
I might have had an easier."

At this time of the year when Jewish students are the centre of community attention, it is interesting to examine the results of two surveys which were undertaken to determine Jewish attitudes among students. One resulted in a symposium in The Jewish Center, published quarterly by the National Jewish Welfare Board, the national association of Jewish community centers. The results of the other appeared in the Yivo Bleter, journal of the Yiddish Scientific Institute. Both contain facts and figures which should have the serious attention of all Jewish communities, and this column will present them here in a free-running sort of account, in parts verbatim.

Judah I. Shapiro, Director of Hillel Foundations for Metropolitan Boston, serving Harvard University, Radcliffe College, Boston University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts College, and Simmons College, bases his conclusions on close contact with hundreds of Jewish students from whom he sought to find out what Jewish life means to them, how they view themselves as participants in Jewish affairs, how they regard past and present forms of Jewish life, and what part Jewishness plays in their functioning as human beings. He found that most Jewish students are not aware of any particular pattern of Jewish life. That is, they do little or nothing in a definite way or at a definite time or in a particular place which is associated with their being Jewish, other than that a few try to observe Kashruth, a few Zionists regard Zionism as their Jewish pattern of life, and a few go to Friday services.

Most students indicate that religion is inseparable from Jewishness. At the same time, they do not observe nor feel deeply about religion. Their acquaintance with the Bible and the Talmud is nil, they are not aware of any modern Jewish culture and regard that of the past as ancient, useless, and unrelated to contemporary life. Dissociation from Jewry does not come easily, however, despite absence of knowledge and feeling, and is regarded as cowardice. These students tend to behave in such a way as to belie charges of objectionable behavior commonly attributed to Jews. Some say they are sloppy, some say they are overdressed, for instance. Since these charges are diametrically opposed, the Jews are in a dilemma which makes them self-conscious.

Jewish students do not see anything peculiar about the "Jewish problem" and think that the Jewish situation will be corrected along with social ills. They don't think much of Jewish leadership, lay or rabbinical, and regard it all as intellectually sterile, self-seeking, and undemocratic, and they are irritated by organizational strife that they hear about. They are ready to learn about Jewish affairs but set a very high standard for teaching, are not impressed by big names, but want competence, sincerity, and depth on the part of instructors. They feel that they are poorly provided with Jewish activities, most of which are not on an intellectual level high enough. Hillel Foundations try to create adequate forms of activity for them. Otherwise, they are interested in activities that intensify democracy and view efforts to elevate the community at large as the best way to combat anti-Semitism.

In the symposium in the Jewish Center, Seymour Fromer, Graduate Student Assistant of the Hillel Foundations at the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University, in Philadelphia and Isaac Rabinowitz, Director of the Hillel Foundations there, add some valuable findings.

Although many Jewish students come from "traditional" homes, ritual observance is rare among them. Scarcely one in a thousand observes the Sabbath strictly and not more than twenty percent will abstain from eating pork away from home. When they attend services it is almost entirely confined to the high holy days, or the saying of memorial prayers, an institution that is steadily weakening. Out of 391 students, two-thirds were bar-mitzvah, but most of them never or rarely donned the philacteries. Outside of the high holy days, Passover alone maintains anything like its former importance and that only for the sedarim, abstention from hametz being practiced about like kashruth.

However, all this does not mean an abandonment of religion, for seventy-five percent of the students consider Jewish religion the basis of peoplehood or culture. It does mean that a distinction is drawn between religion as a personal outlook upon life and religion as an institution with rites and ceremonies. Atheism is rare, the majority professing some sort of belief in God.

As to Zionism, the writers of this second paper never met an actively opposed student. Nearly every campus has a group of ardent Zionists but most students regard Zionism as philanthropy, know little about its history and theory, and range from near-indifference to whole-hearted advocacy. To the question: "Do you think that Zionism (and the upbuilding of Palestine) is the only solution to the Jewish problem?" 112 of the 391 answered "yes"; 216 "no"; and 63 were doubtful. Twenty-five percent consider Jews to be a nationality; seventy-five percent, a religious group.

Anti-Semitism makes normal development of the personality difficult and there has been an increase in the tendency to fight it, a steeling of determination not to take it lying down, and to seek group means of combatting it. Among students the belief is widespread that anti-Semitism grows out of minority group status and economic tension grafted upon latent fear of the stranger on the part of the majority group. Nearly sixty-nine percent of the 391 students believe that the Jews as a minority group become scapegoats, that the problem is not merely a Jewish one but also a Gentile one.

Nearly all Jewish students believe in the future of the American Jewish community, want it to continue and want to participate in it although they are not schooled enough yet to have decided convictions on what they want it to become. Yet fully 119 out of 391 approve of intermarriage; ten percent were doubtful; sixty-one percent disapproved. While the boys had more Jewish schooling only forty-five percent of them were against intermarriage compared with sixty-four percent of the girls. Incidentally, the general level of previous Jewish education is quite low.

Judah Goldin, Assistant National Director of Bnai Brith Hillel Foundations, says in his brief paper that the campus will not automatically transform non-Aryans into Jews. The problem must be tackled in pre-college days for it was at home that the youth found few occasions when what Judaism teaches was correlated with his experiences or interests. Translating that into simpler talk, Dr. Goldin says: "Let us say he has been appealed to for a charitable contribution. . . . Does it ever occur to his parents and neighbors to indicate what Judaism has to say about being charitable? Or, assume that some ethical issues have been raised. Has any one troubled to call his attention to the idealisms of Scripture? Or, take a look at the shelves in his room. Are there any Jewish books, even in translation, which reveal use? There may be a Bible or Siddur on a shelf: but these are Bar-Mitzvah gifts, well meaning and too gilt edged for use." Dr. Goldin believes that the Jews must not fail to provide influence toward the inculcation of specific Jewish attitudes in students.

The Only Remedy for Hunger is FOOD!

The most efficient way in which we can send increased bulk shipments of WHEAT, MEAT, CHEESE and EGGS to needy countries is through the Canadian government food Boards. These increased bulk shipments can only be made providing we reduce our own consumption. Here are five important ways by which we can make greater quantities of food available for export:

(1) BUY AND USE LESS BREAD, FLOUR AND OTHER WHEAT PRODUCTS, MEAT, CHEESE AND EGGS. SUBSTITUTE VEGETABLES, FRUIT AND FISH WHERE POSSIBLE.

(2) AVOID ALL WASTE.

(3) KEEP YOUR HOME STOCKS LOW — BUY ONLY ENOUGH FOR IMMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS.

(4) GROW A VICTORY GARDEN AGAIN THIS YEAR. PLANT MORE THIS TIME IF YOU CAN.

(5) DONATE ANY MEAT COUPONS YOU CAN SPARE. ENQUIRE AT YOUR LOCAL RATION BOARD.

Share with the hungry!
